Casting Your Pod to the Wind: New Media Enhancing Learning

For two years, a group of faculty at Middlesex Community College has explored educational environments making use of new media technologies to enhance online and face-to-face teaching and learning. Participants discuss the results of projects piloting the use and integration of blogs, streaming media, virtual immersive environments, and podcasts blended together with traditional classroom instruction to create new kinds of learning experiences designed to meet the changing needs and expectations of 21st century students.
