The University of Miami will conduct a full-scale test of its Emergency Notification Network (ENN) on Thursday, October 18, beginning at 12:15 p.m. The UM Emergency Notification Network is a comprehensive communications system that allows the University to quickly disseminate urgent messages through multiple communication mediums including:

- voice messages to cell, home, and office phones
- text messages to cell phones
- e-mail messages
- public address and loudspeaker messages
- emergency notification sirens on Coral Gables campus only (Please note that outdoor emergency notification sirens will be a part of the event)

MAKE SURE YOU’RE IN THE LOOP
All of your contact information on myUM must be current to receive ENN messages, including this test. Additionally, please visit the Emergency Preparedness Web site for a full explanation of the ENN, frequently asked questions, and step-by-step directions for registration on myUM.
